IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF ARIZONA

The Travelers Indemnity Company, as subrogee of Tourism and Sports Authority) d/b/a Arizona Sports & Tourism) Authority, Plaintiff, vs. Crown Corr, Inc., Defendant.	No. CV 11-0965-PHX-JAT ORDER
---	--

Pending before the Court is Crown Corr’s Motion for Award of Attorneys’ Fees and Non-Taxable Expenses (Doc. 39).

I. BACKGROUND¹

This Court previously granted Crown Corr’s Motion to Dismiss Plaintiff’s Complaint. In its Complaint, Travelers sought to recover roughly $1.4 million in damages that it paid on behalf of its insured, Tourism and Sports Authority (“TSA”). TSA is the owner of the University of Phoenix Stadium (the “Facility”). Hunt Construction (“Hunt”) entered into a “Design/Build Agreement” (the “DBA”) with TSA for the construction of the Facility. Hunt then entered into a subcontract (the “Subcontract”) with Defendant Crown Corr for services

1 relating to the construction of the Facility. Travelers' Complaint was dismissed with 2 prejudice. Crown Corr now moves, pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 54(d)(2), 3 for an award of attorneys' fees and non-taxable expenses and argues that it is entitled to such 4 fees pursuant to contractual authority and statutory authority. Travelers disputes Crown
 5 Corr's entitlement to attorneys' fees.

6 A. Whether There is Contractual Authority for an Award of Attorneys' Fees

7 Crown Corr claims to be entitled to an award of attorneys' fees pursuant to paragraph 8 14.6 of the Agreement for Design/Build Services ("DBA") (Doc. 22-2 at 90), which states:

9 The prevailing party in any litigation shall be 10 entitled to recover from the other party its 11 reasonable attorneys' fees, costs, and consultants' fees and other expenses incurred by the prevailing party in connection with such litigation.

12 (Doc. 22-2 at 90). Crown Corr admits that it is not a party to the DBA, but instead claims
 13 that, because the DBA was incorporated into the Subcontract between Hunt and itself, this 14 provision should apply to allow it to recover attorneys' fees. (Doc 48 at 2). Crown Corr also 15 argues that paragraph 14.6 should be dispositive because Travelers cited this provision "as 16 part of its claim against Crown Corr." Id. In response, Travelers argues that Crown Corr was 17 neither a party nor a third-party beneficiary of this provision of the DBA and thus Travelers 18 is not bound by paragraph 14.6 because Travelers was not a party to the Subcontract. (Doc.
 19 51 at 2-3).

20 The Court agrees that Crown Corr is not entitled to fees under paragraph 14.6 of the 21 DBA. Although the Subcontract incorporates the DBA, it does not make Crown Corr a third-22 party beneficiary to all of the provisions of the DBA. Crown Corr fails to point to any 23 language in the DBA making it a third-party beneficiary of the attorneys' fees provision of 24 the DBA. Accordingly, Crown Corr is not entitled to attorneys' fees based on paragraph 14.6
 25 of the DBA.

26 B. Whether There is Statutory Authority for an Award of Attorneys' Fees

27 Crown Corr next argues that it is entitled to attorneys' fees under A.R.S. section 12-
 28

341.01. (Doc. 39 at 2). That provision allows a Court to award attorneys’ fees to the successful party in any dispute “arising out of” a contract dispute. A.R.S. § 12-341.01. Travelers contends that the provisions of the Subcontract are “incompatible with an award to [Crown Corr].” (Doc. 51 at 5). Travelers further asserts that the Subcontract’s terms expressly exclude an award of this nature and that Arizona law precludes considering section 12-341.01 where a contract seeks to control the award of attorneys’ fees. Id. at 6. Travelers also argues, in the alternative, that Crown Corr should not be awarded attorneys’ fees because it did not comply with LRCiv. 54.2. Id. at 7. Finally, Travelers argues that, even if section 12-341.01 does apply, it should not be applied based on the Warner factors.² Id. The Court will now examine these issues.

1. Whether 12-341.01 Applies

Travelers argues that where “contractual terms are inconsistent with an award of fees, a court cannot award them under a statute.” (Doc. 51 at 5). Travelers claims that paragraph 33.6 of the Subcontract contains a “specific, express provision limiting the recoverable fees and expenses to those incurred by the general contractor . . .”. Id. Travelers reads this provision to ‘expressly [provide] that the only ‘attorneys’ fees, disbursements or costs’ that may be awarded under the Subcontract are those ‘incurred by Hunt or for which Hunt is liable to others under the [Contracts] or applicable law.’” Id. (emphasis added). Travelers cites to Jordan v. Burghbacher, 883 P.2d 458 (Ariz. Ct. App. 1994) to support its argument. Id. There, the Court held that section 12-341.01 was inapplicable when a contract governed the recovery of attorneys’ fees. Jordan, 883 P.2d 458.

Paragraph 33.6 of the Subcontract states:

Whenever reasonable attorneys’ fees, disbursements or costs are referred to in this Subcontract, such terms include, without limitation, the following expenses paid or incurred by Hunt or for which Hunt is liable to others.

(Doc. 22-3 at 39) (emphasis added). Travelers argues that this definitional provision somehow limits recoverable attorneys' fees to Hunt and parties to which Hunt is liable. However, paragraph 33.6 attempts to further define the terms "attorneys' fees, disbursement, or costs," but it does not limit them. Id. The terms "include" and "without limitation" mean that Hunt was to recover fees when they were referred to in the Subcontract. However, this definition does not, on its face, limit recovery of fees to Hunt. See Black's Law Dictionary, (9th ed. 2009), include. The phrase "without limitation" means that the terms listed are not the only terms included. Any reading of this provision as creating a unilateral contract solely in favor of Hunt is untenable on the plain language of paragraph 33.6. Travelers has not pointed to any other part of the Subcontract that purports to limit the recovery of attorneys' fees to Hunt.

Even if this provision purported to limit fees to Hunt, Arizona courts "will not infer a prohibition against the recovery of attorneys' fees to one party under [section] 12-341.01 simply because a contract contains a unilateral attorneys' fee provision favorable to another party." Pioneer Roofing Co. v. Mardian Constr. Co., 733 P.2d 652, 668 (Ariz. Ct. App. 1986); see McDowell Mountain Ranch Cmty. Ass'n v. Simons, 165 P.3d 667, 669 n.1 (Ariz. Ct. App. 2007).

Accordingly, as Travelers has pointed to no specific provision in the contracts limiting Crown Corr's ability to pursue attorneys' fees, section 12-341.01 applies to a fee award in this case.

2. Whether Crown Corr Complied with Local Rules

Travelers argues that Crown Corr is not entitled to fees because it did not comply with Local Rule 54.2. (Doc. 51 at 8). Local Rule 54.2(d) requires a party moving for attorneys' fees to provide supporting documentation, which must include a statement of consultation, a fee agreement, an itemized statement of fees, and an affidavit. LRCiv 54.2(d). That

1 affidavit must contain statements regarding the background of each attorney involved in the 2 litigation and the reasonableness of the rate and time spent. Id. Within the attorneys'
3 statement on reasonableness, the Local Rules indicate the moving party must discuss whether 4 or not the client has paid their attorneys' bills and if so, to what extent. Id.

5 The moving attorneys must also demonstrate that they have exercised billing judgment
6 in these affidavits. Id. Noncompliance with any of these rules can justify a Court in entirely 7 rejecting an application for fees, as they are "not advisory, but are mandatory to support an 8 award of attorneys' fees." Societe Civile Succession Richard Guiono v. Beseder, Inc., No.
9 CV 03-1310-PHX-MHM, 2007 WL 3238703, at *7 (D. Ariz. Oct. 31, 2007). In some cases, 10 however, a Court may overlook mere "procedural irregularity" and award fees in the face of 11 a violation of Local Rule 54.2. Schrum v. Burlington N. Santa Fe Ry. Co., CV
12 04-0619-PHX-RCB, 2008 WL 2278137, at *3 (D. Ariz. May 30, 2008).

13 Travelers first argues that Crown Corr has not demonstrated exercise of billing
14 judgment. (Doc. 51 at 8). Crown Corr contends that it has made a showing of billing 15 judgment in Doc. 48-1. (Doc. 52 at 8). The Court agrees. Doc. 48-1 is an affidavit signed by 16 James L. Blair in which he asserts personal knowledge of the background and reasonableness
17 of fees. The Court can find no violation of Local Rule 54.2 for failure to exercise billing 18 judgment. (Doc. 48-1).

19 Travelers next alleges that Crown Corr has failed to attach fee agreements or to 20 describe which fees have been paid in its motion for attorneys' fees. In response, Crown Corr 21 contends that it has attached these agreements and included descriptions in Doc. 48-1 and 22 Doc. 52-1. (Doc. 52 at 9). Doc. 52-1 contains affidavits dealing with fee agreements and 23 Crown Corr's payment history. (Doc. 52-1). Accordingly, Doc. 48-1 and Doc. 52-1 contain 24 the information necessary to satisfy the fee agreements and descriptions requirement.

25 However, Crown Corr has failed to include a Statement of Consultation with its 26 Motion for Fees. Because Crown Corr has not made an effort to discuss attorneys' fees with 27 Travelers, the Court has discretion to reject their award for attorneys' fees. Schrum, 2008 WL
28

2278137 at *3. As mentioned above, the Court also has discretion to allow fees in spite of this noncompliance. Id. The Court finds that rejecting fees in their entirety would be an inequitable result, but the Court will factor this non-compliance in its later analysis.

3. Whether Crown Corr Is Entitled to an Award

Under Arizona law, “[i]n any contested action arising out of a contract, express or implied, the court may award the successful party reasonable attorney fees.” A.R.S. § 12-341.01(a). Therefore, in order to award attorneys’ fees to Crown Corr under this statute, the Court must find that Crown Corr is the “successful party,” that the action arose out of a contract, that the award of attorneys’ fees is appropriate, and that the fees are reasonable.

a. Whether Crown Corr is a Successful Party

Crown Corr is the “successful party” under A.R.S. section 12-341.01(a). Under Arizona law, to determine whether a party is a successful party, the Court considers the “totality of the litigation.” All Am. Distrib. Co., Inc. v. Miller Brewing Co., 736 F.2d 530, 532 (9th Cir. 1984); see Nataros v. Fine Arts Gallery of Scottsdale, 612 P.2d 500, 505 (Ariz. Ct. App. 1980). “[T]he fact that a party does not recover the full measure of relief it requests does not mean it is not the successful party.” Sanborn v. Booker & Wake Prop. Mgmt., Inc., 874 P.2d 982, 987 (Ariz. Ct. App. 1994).

In the present case, the Court granted a motion to dismiss with prejudice in favor of Crown Corr and judgment was entered in favor of Crown Corr. Travelers contends that Crown Corr had a number of motions denied,³ however these motions were immaterial to the ultimate disposition of the case, as Crown Corr’s motion to dismiss was granted. See e.g. Doc. 37 at 1-4. Therefore, Crown Corr is a “successful party” within the meaning of A.R.S. § 12-341.01(a).

b. Whether the Action Arises Out of Contract

³ The Court denied Defendant’s Motion for Summary Disposition of the Motion to Dismiss Third Amended Complaint with Supporting Affidavit and granted Plaintiff’s Motion for Extension of Time to Answer.

1 This case arises out of a contract. When determining whether an action arises “out of 2 a contract,” a court must consider the “essence of the action.” ASH, Inc. v. Mesa Unified Sch.
3 Dist. No. 4, 673 P.2d 934, 937 (Ariz. Ct. App. 1983). If “a contract was a factor in causing 4 the dispute,” the action arose out of the contract. Id. at 937.

5 Neither party disputes that this action arose from contracts related to the construction 6 of the Facility. Accordingly, the contracts were “factor[s] in causing the dispute” and,
7 therefore, this action arose from a contract within the meaning of section 12-341.01(a).

8 c. Whether the Award is Appropriate

9 An award of attorneys’ fees is appropriate. Under A.R.S. § 12-341.01, the Court may 10 award reasonable attorneys’ fees. There is no presumption in favor of granting attorneys’
11 fees in contract actions; rather, it is a matter within the discretion of the Court. Warner, 694
12 P.2d at 1183-84. The Arizona Supreme Court has enumerated six factors that courts must 13 consider when deciding whether to award attorneys’ fees to a prevailing party: (1) the merits
14 of the unsuccessful party’s claim or defense; (2) whether litigation could have been avoided
15 or settled; (3) whether assessing fees against the unsuccessful party would cause extreme 16 hardship; (4) whether the successful party prevailed with respect to all relief sought; (5) the 17 novelty of the issues; and (6) whether the award would discourage other parties with tenable
18 claims or defenses from litigating or defending legitimate contract issues for fear of incurring 19 liability for substantial amounts of attorneys’ fees. Id. at 1184.

20 Here, Travelers failed to assert a successful claim because its insured waived its 21 subrogation rights. While there may have been some issues that were “open to debate,” as 22 Travelers’ puts it, these issues were not necessary to the resolution of the case or were 23 ultimately rejected by the Court. Because Travelers failed to make a claim that warranted 24 litigation past dismissal, this factor weighs in favor of awarding attorneys’ fees.

25 Second, the record is generally devoid of any real effort to avoid or settle this lawsuit 26 on the part of Travelers or Crown Corr. Crown Corr claims it contacted Travelers asking for 27 a withdrawal of the claims and Travelers refused. Crown Corr argues that, because Travelers
28

1 had no subrogation rights, and thus no right to bring a suit, this withdrawal would have been
2 proper. However, asking the other side to withdraw its suit does not fall under the category
3 of negotiation. This Court has been presented with no evidence that either side made 4 significant efforts to negotiate a settlement. Thus, this factor does not favor either party.

5 Third, Travelers has failed to allege that an award of attorneys' fees would present an 6 "extreme hardship." Travelers has offered no evidence to show any financial circumstances
7 sufficient to suggest an undue hardship. Therefore, the Court cannot consider Travelers'
8 hardship in determining whether to award fees. See Rowland v. Great State Ins. Co., 20 P.3d 9 1158, 1168, n. 7 (Ariz. Ct. App. 2001); Woerth v. City of Flagstaff, 808 P.2d 297, 305 (Ariz.
10 Ct. App. 1991) (party seeking fees bears burden of proving entitlement to fees, except, on 11 this prong, burden shifts to party opposing fees to come forward with prime facie evidence 12 of financial hardship, and that evidence must be in the form of sworn testimony). Thus, this 13 factor weighs in favor of awarding attorneys' fees.

14 Fourth, Travelers argues that, because Crown Corr was denied summary disposition
15 and on opposing an extension of time, Crown Corr did not "prevail on all relief sought." Doc.
16 51 at 12. However, Crown Corr's success was not dependent on those motions and Crown
17 Corr accomplished its goal by having the case dismissed. Doc. 37 at 1-4. Thus, this factor 18 weighs in favor of awarding attorneys' fees.

19 Fifth, Travelers brought a breach of contract claim against Crown Corr. Although 20 these matters are adjudicated in the courts on a daily basis, this case presented some novel 21 issues. Crown Corr admits "this lawsuit presented a somewhat novel question of law" and 22 then refers specifically to the "issues open to debate" that have been mentioned above. Doc.
23 48 at 8. Novelty weighs against awarding fees. Rowland, 20 P.3d 1158, at 1168. Thus, this 24 factor weighs against awarding attorneys' fees.

25 As to the last factor, an award of attorneys' fees in this case would not discourage 26 other parties with tenable claims from pursuing such claims. While the fear of incurring
27 liability for substantial amounts of attorneys' fees will generally tend to discourage litigation, 28

1 the legislature has specifically provided for attorneys' fees in contract disputes. See Ariz.
2 Rev. Stat. Ann. §12-341.01. Awarding attorneys' fees in such cases has the effect of 3 dissuading litigants from taking a case to trial when there are clear contractual provisions that 4 prohibit litigation. Because the contract claims in this case were barred by the DBA, an 5 award of attorneys' fees will not have the effect of precluding meritorious claims.

6 Therefore, the Court finds that the factors-based analysis of the appropriateness of 7 attorneys' fees tilts sharply, though not entirely, in favor of Crown Corr. Thus, an award of 8 attorneys' fees is appropriate in this case.

9 d. Whether the Fees and Expenses are Reasonable

10 The final step in the attorneys' fees analysis is to determine whether the fees sought
11 by Crown Corr are reasonable. See Schweiger v. China Doll Rest., Inc., 673 P.2d 927, 931
12 (Ariz. Ct. App. 1983). In the original motion, Crown Corr sought an estimated $190,000 in 13 fees. Thereafter, Crown Corr filed a Memorandum in Support of Crown Corr's Motion for 14 Attorneys' Fees, wherein Crown Corr amended its fees. Crown Corr now seeks $189,822.61
15 in fees and expenses. (Doc. 52 at 11).

16 The Court may award the successful party in a contract action reasonable attorneys'
17 fees. A.R.S. § 12-341.01(a). Once a party submits an itemized list of fees with sufficient 18 detail and establishes entitlement to fees, the burden then shifts to the party challenging the 19 fees to show that the fees are unreasonable. See Nolan v. Starlight Pines Homeowners Ass'n, 20 167 P.3d 1277, 1286 (Ariz. Ct. App. 2007).

21 When determining if a fee award is reasonable, the Court must consider the hourly fee 22 and the number of hours worked. Jordan v. Multnomah Cnty., 815 F.2d 1258, 1262 (9th Cir.
23 1987). In this case, Travelers does not challenge the hourly rates that Crown Corr's attorneys
24 charged, but instead argues that the amount of hours worked was excessive. Thus, the Court 25 will only review the amount of hours worked. (Doc. 51 at 13-17).

26 In analyzing the reasonableness of hours expended, the Court looks to the amount of 27 hours that would be expended by a "reasonable and prudent lawyer." China Doll, 673 P.2d 28

1 at 932. Further, “[i]n order for the court to make a determination that the hours claimed are 2 justified, the fee application must be in sufficient detail to enable the court to assess the 3 reasonableness of the time incurred.” Id. An award may also be reduced for hours not 4 “reasonably expended.” Id. As the United States Supreme Court explained in Hensley v.
5 Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424 (1983),

6 Counsel for the prevailing party should make a good faith effort
7 to exclude from a fee request hours that are excessive, 8 redundant, or otherwise unnecessary, just as a lawyer in private practice ethically is obligated to exclude such hours from his fees submission.

9 Id. at 434.

10 Travelers has raised a number of objections to the reasonableness of the hours claimed 11 by Crown Corr. Travelers challenges Crown Corr’s fee application, in part, because eighteen 12 attorneys worked on the case, which Travelers claims necessarily involves duplication of 13 effort and inefficiencies. (Doc. 51 at 17). Undoubtably, the more timekeepers a firm has 14 working on a case, the higher the likelihood of duplication of effort and wasted time. On the 15 other hand, complicated litigation of a significant magnitude may demand the resources of 16 multiple attorneys and firms. See Agster v. Maricopa Cnty., 486 F.Supp.2d 1005, 1015-16
17 (D. Ariz. 2007).

18 Crown Corr defends the number of attorneys that worked on the case by arguing that 19 eight of those attorneys worked two hours or less. (Doc. 52 at 10). While ten attorneys 20 working on one case may seem excessive, the litigation involved potential claimants in three 21 different states and a claim at issue of over one million dollars. After a careful review of the 22 invoices for Crown Corr’s three defense firms and their supporting affidavits, the Court is 23 satisfied that the hours billed are not excessive. This Court is unwilling to reduce fees 24 without some kind of supporting evidence that the fees are excessive. Where entries have 25 provided a sufficient amount of information, the Court has found the amount of hours billed 26 on the litigation to be reasonable. The fees will not be reduced for being excessive.

27 Travelers challenges the pre-complaint investigation and analysis fees on the basis that 28

1 they were charged before the complaint was filed, and, alternatively, that the investigation
 2 is unrelated to the litigation. (Doc 51 at 16). Pre-complaint work is considered part of the 3 process of litigation and can be included in an award for fees. Pioneer Roofing Co., 733 P.2d
 4 at 665. While pre-complaint work is important to litigation, this Court cannot find any 5 authority which justifies a presumption of the validity of pre-complaint fees and expenses.
 6 Travelers asserts that the “vast majority of fees incurred by . . . Donovan Hatem and Sullivan
 7 Ward . . . actually involve Crown Corr’s insurance carriers’ post-storm investigations and 8 claims monitoring for multiple insureds and multiple potential claimaints.” (Doc. 51 at 16).
 9 In fact, Travelers contends that Crown Corr has attempted to “pull a ‘fast one’ on this Court.”
 10 Id.

11 The Donovan Hatem invoice contains fee entries that do appear to be unrelated to the 12 claim. One entry reads:

13 “02/14/11 KRR L120:A104 REVIEW COVERAGE
 14 COUNSEL’S PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO JOINT 15 DEFENSE AGREEMENT CLAUSE REGARDING
 16 CONFLICT COUNSEL IN CONJUNCTION WITH UNI
 SYSTEM’S AND WALTER P. MOORE’S REQUESTS
 REGARDING THE SAME PROVISION TO PREPARE FOR TELEPHONE CONFERENCE WITH LEXINGTON.”

17 (Doc. 48-2 at 85). To support their assertion that these fees are related, Crown Corr has 18 submitted the sworn affidavit of Gwen P. Weisberg. In her affidavit, Ms. Weisberg asserted 19 “The Donovan Hatem invoices cover a fourteen (14) month period, August 2010 through 20 October 2011, and approximately $52,000. The first nine (9) months represent pre-litigation
 21 legal services, e.g., analyzing the claims and relevant contracts, negotiating with Travelers, 22 and working with consulting experts (Bliss & Nyitray, Inc., for example), to understand and 23 attempt to resolve the Travelers claim pre-lawsuit. (Doc. 52-1 at 6) (emphasis added). Ms.
 24 Weisberg also asserts that “[a]ll of the pre-lawsuit investigation and negotiations contributed 25 significantly to the successful resolution of the lawsuit.” Id. at 7.

26 Based on this affidavit, the Court can only conclude that any ambiguity in the invoices
 27
 28

1 must be a factor of the brief nature of a fee entry, and not, as Travelers asserts, bad faith.⁴
 2 However, as a large majority of the pre-complaint litigation does, indeed, appear to be 3 unrelated to the litigation, the Court must exclude the majority of these fees pursuant to Local 4 Rule 54.2(e)(2). That rule indicates that the “party seeking an award of fees must adequately 5 describe the services rendered so that the reasonableness of the charge can be evaluated.”
 6 LRCiv 54.2(e)(2). The rule also provides that if “the time descriptions are incomplete, or if 7 such descriptions fail to adequately describe the service rendered, the court may reduce the 8 award accordingly.” Id. So, while the Court does not lend credence to Plaintiff’s contention
 9 that Defendant’s fee award request was made in bad faith, Defendant’s invoices have not 10 been kept in a manner that sufficiently describe the services rendered and their relationship 11 to the Crown Corr litigation. After a careful review of these invoices, the Court finds that 12 there is insufficient evidence to justify an award of fees for the Donovan Hatem pre-

13
 14 ⁴ Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 11 indicates:

15 By presenting to the court a pleading, written motion, or other
 16 paper--whether by signing, filing, submitting, or later
 17 advocating it--an attorney or unrepresented party certifies that 18 to the best of the person's knowledge, information, and belief,
 19 formed after an inquiry reasonable under the circumstances: (1) 20 it is not being presented for any improper purpose, such as to 21 harass, cause unnecessary delay, or needlessly increase the cost
 22 of litigation; (2) the claims, defenses, and other legal contentions
 23 are warranted by existing law or by a non-frivolous argument 24 for extending, modifying, or reversing existing law or for 25 establishing new law; (3) the factual contentions have 26 evidentiary support or, if specifically so identified, will likely 27 have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for 28 further investigation or discovery; and (4) the denials of factual contentions are warranted on the evidence or, if specifically so identified, are reasonably based on belief or a lack of information.

26 Fed. R. Civ. P. 11. Because both parties to this suit are aware of this Rule, the Court will rely 27 on their briefs and affidavits in the absence of evidence of bad faith.

1 complaint litigation. Accordingly, the Court has reduced the Donovan Hatem fee award to 2 $9,481. This reduction takes into account a complete exclusion of pre-complaint fees.

3 Similarly, many of Sullivan Ward's invoice entries are incomplete or too vague to 4 assess. Most notable are those relating to correspondence. The Local Rules provide that 5 telephone conferences must "identify all participants and the reason for the telephone call,"
6 Id. This requirement also applies to emails and physical correspondence. See LRCiv.
7 54.2(e)(2)(A)-(D)(providing examples of billing entries). Because these entries, and others,
8 are incomplete, the Sullivan Ward fee award will be reduced to $4,275. This reduction takes 9 into account a complete exclusion of fees where the entries do not conform to the Local 10 Rules.

11 For the preceding reasons, the Court has determined that the requested fee award is 12 reasonable, but that a portion of it is too unclear to assess properly.

13 e. Whether Crown Corr is Entitled to Expenses

14 Because Crown Corr is claiming fees pursuant to A.R.S. sections 12-341 and 12-15 341.01, Arizona law is controlling here. At the outset of any discussion of expenses, it is 16 valuable to draw a distinction between taxable and non-taxable costs. Under Arizona law, 17 taxable costs that can be recovered pursuant to A.R.S. §12-341 are limited, by A.R.S. 12-332,
18 to "expenses incurred for witness fees, deposition expenses, certified copies, surety expenses, 19 and other costs incurred pursuant to an agreement between the parties." Ahwatukee Custom 20 Estates Mgmt Ass'n, Inc. v. Bach, 973 P.2d 106, 107 (Ariz. 1999). The court in Bach
21 specifically recognized that "section 12-332 does not permit recovery of expenses incurred 22 for photocopying, long distance telephone calls, messenger and delivery charges, and 23 telecopier or fax charges." Id. Section 12-332 also contains no provision allowing travel
24 expenses. In order to claim taxable expenses under Local Rule 54.1(a), a claimant must file 25 a Bill of Costs with the Clerk of the Court. LRCiv. 54.1(a).

26 Further, the Arizona Supreme Court has held that non-taxable costs are not 27 recoverable under 12-341.01. Bach, 973 P.2d at 109. Unless provided for by statute, non-28

1 taxable costs are generally not recoverable. Id. More specifically, expert witness expenses
2 are not allowed under 12.341.01 as they are not activities undertaken by an attorney. Id.
3 (indicating that 12-341.01 is limited to “[an attorney’s] legal training and knowledge as it
4 relates to the legal services rendered to, or on behalf of, a particular client.”).

5 In the instant case, Crown Corr has not filed a Bill of Costs, and cannot claim taxable 6 expenses. Even if they could, none of Crown Corr’s expenses are of a type that can be 7 claimed as taxable expenses under section 12-332. Because there is no statutory provision 8 allowing the Court to award Crown Corr non-taxable expenses, it is not entitled to these 9 expenses. Therefore, the Court will not award any expenses to Crown Corr and will reduce 10 its request by $30,834.81.

11 II. CONCLUSION

12 The Court finds that an award amount of $105,284.10 is reasonable. This award takes 13 into account a reduction of $84,538.51 for incurable ambiguity and a rejection of expenses.

14 Based on the foregoing,

15 IT IS ORDERED that Crown Corr’s Motion for Award of Attorneys’ Fees and Non-16 Taxable Expenses (Doc. 39) is granted in the amount of $105,284.10.

17 DATED this 29th day of June, 2012.
